

SA Tomorrow holds first planning session

Sat, Apr 11 2015, 11:45 PM EDT

Like  Tweet

SAN ANTONIO - By the year 2040, San Antonio is expected to have an additional 1.1 million people living in the city.

So, on Saturday, the city held its first SA Tomorrow session to plan for that expected growth. City leaders, agencies and community members joined in the conversation, discussing ideas addressing housing, transportation, jobs, need and visions for the population growth.

The event featured mini-workshops and surveys, kids' activities and safety demonstrations.

The goal of SA Tomorrow is to steer the city toward smart, sustainable growth through a comprehensive sustainability plan including transportation.

Terms and Conditions (</m/terms/>)

Click to View Full Website (<http://news4sanantonio.com//?wap=0>)

© Sinclair Broadcast Group 2014