Officials project that 1 million people will move to San Antonio by 2040, which will require the city to create additional transportation modes, new jobs, and housing options.

Mayor Ivy Taylor stressed the importance of citizen participation in the planning process.

"Citizen involvement in the planning process will mean the difference between a set of plans that sits on a shelf, or planning documents that are living, breathing, reflections of how our residents feel about the future of our city," Mayor Taylor said.

Officials hope that transportation resources like VIA Metropolitan Transit's new E-bus will help manage downtown traffic. The bus plans to run during evenings from Tuesday to Saturday, providing free transportation to popular destinations including La Villita and the Tobin Center for the Arts.

"The growth in San Antonio is absolutely mind boggling in terms of population, but also in terms of congestion we are experiencing in our streets and the strain on our infrastructure," Dist. 8 Councilman Ron Nirenberg said. "We're trying to develop an integrated plan to deal with all those things."

SA Tomorrow officially kicks off with a free, interactive event for residents on Saturday, April 11.

Attendees are invited to enjoy mini-workshops, family-friendly activities and prize giveaways like exercise equipment and family entertainment packages.

Residents can visit www.SATomorrow.com for more information on upcoming events and meetings.

The SA Tomorrow kick-off event takes place from Saturday, April 11 from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at the Alamo Convocation Center, 110 Tuleta, San Antonio 78212 (VIA Routes 7 and 8).
